Adolescent smoking statistics....

Cigarette smoking during childhood and adolescence can cause significant health problems for young people.

- Tobacco use, including cigarette smoking, cigar smoking, and smokeless tobacco use, remains the leading preventable cause of death in the United States.¹
- Each year cigarette smoking accounts for approximately 1 of every 5 deaths, or about 438,000 people. Cigarette smoking results in 5.5 million years of potential life lost in the United States annually.²
- Every day, approximately 4,000 American youth aged 12-17 try their first cigarette, and an estimated 1,140 young people become daily cigarette smokers.³
- In 2007, 20% of high schools students reported current cigarette use and 14% reported current cigar use. In addition, 8% of high school students and 18% of white male high school students reported current smokeless tobacco use.⁴

It is estimated that smoking results in more deaths each
year in the U.S.
than alcohol, cocaine,
heroin, AIDS, suicide,
homicide, motor vehicle accidents, and fires combined.
